[REDACTED]

The harbor was congested with cargo and steamships at this time. In 50X1-HUM the area marked with red lines in the attached sketch [REDACTED] a large quantity of newly built medium-weight trucks lined up in several rows [REDACTED] estimated their number at 200. Hale C was occupied by crates of various sizes and shapes, some rectangular, others round. The latter probably contained electric cable. Their destination could not be ascertained.
Two tankers, one of which [REDACTED] observed in 50X1-HUM
the harbor area servicing petroleum. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED] Enroute to Odessa, [REDACTED] a Bosphorus-bound Soviet passenger steamer carrying on its deck a large number of the same type of trucks [REDACTED] 50X1-HUM in Odessa harbor.

Contrary to previous reports [REDACTED] steamships waiting to proceed to the pier to load never anchored in sea area D. They all had to remain outside the harbor in Area A. Only steamships which had finished loading and were awaiting medical clearance to depart halted in
